GNLU conducts RbTU Presentation for the New Semester

Dear Sir/Madam,

Greetings from GNLU!

Gujarat National Law University (GNLU) is a Research Based Teaching University and hence it always strives to achieve excellence in academics and research by addressing various contemporary legal issues. Research Based Teaching University (RbTU) is an innovative and unique concept which has been introduced to ensure quality teaching at the University. The University has introduced and implemented this RbTU concept which is a curriculum model. As an essential corollary of this model, the faculty members prepare an outline of the subject and syllabus, and consult two or more experts in the concerned field of research and teaching in India as well as abroad to solicit their comments on the curriculum. Continuous research and consultation based updating of the curriculum is also a feature of this model.

The RbTU Presentation Seminar was held on 2nd and 4th January 2016 at the Orientation Hall of the University. As part of the Research based Teaching University (RbTU) tradition, all the faculty members of GNLU gave a presentation on the Course Outline and Plan of Teaching on their respective subjects and expertise for this new winter semester, January – June 2016.

The Presentation Seminar was chaired by the Director, Prof. (Dr.) Bimal N. Patel who gave several academic inputs and guided the faculty during their presentation. The Academic Council members namely Prof. Yogesh Mehta and Prof. N K Pathak were also present at this RbTU presentation seminar to give their valuable inputs and suggestions.
