About GNLU Conference on Law and Economics, 2026

The 9th International Conference on Law and Economics - Empirical and Applied law & Economics of Governance and Inclusive Public Policy is scheduled for January 2026. This edition of the conference aims to explore how empirical and applied economic analysis can inform legal reforms, strengthen governance frameworks, and advance inclusive public policy. Submissions are invited across a wide range of substantive areas within law and economics—including but not limited to property law, torts, criminal justice, disability and inclusivity, gender justice, business and finance, market regulation, environmental governance, and social equity.

GNLU Centre for Law and Economics

The GNLU Centre for Law & Economics (GCLE) is a center of excellence dedicated to research and training in the field of Law & Economics, also known as the Economic Analysis of Law. The Centre values rigorous scholarship and aims to promote awareness and research in this discipline. It conducts courses and conferences for scholars, practitioners, and students, in addition to publishing work on the economic analysis of contemporary legal issues. The Centre's goal is to produce high-quality recommendations for legislators, regulators, and government departments while providing clear explanations and guidance for businesses and ordinary citizens alike.

GNLU Centre for Empirical & Applied Research in Law and Interdisciplinary Studies

The Centre is dedicated to exploring the dynamic interplay between legal frameworks and various disciplines, fostering empirical and applied research that informs policy and practice. Its mission is to support and promote empirical and applied legal research, as well as interdisciplinary studies, enabling a scientific analysis of the underlying assumptions of the law, its application, and the impact of the legal system in real-world contexts. The Centre aims to advance empirical scholarship that enhances the theoretical understanding of legal systems while providing practical solutions to contemporary legal challenges. By collaborating with scholars, data analysts, practitioners, and community stakeholders, it seeks to address pressing legal issues and promote empirical solutions that contribute to the welfare of society.

GNLU Centre for Disability Studies

The GNLU Centre for Disability Studies was established on 02nd October 2019 with an aim to work for disability rights and social justice through promotion of teaching and research in the interdisciplinary areas of sociology, social work, law and policy. Through curriculum development, research projects and disability studies, the Centre would attempt at doing meaningful contribution in the areas of disability and human rights, disability and society, accessibility and reasonable accommodations, inclusive education, gender and disability, amongst others. The Centre intends to create an environment ensuring mainstreaming and equal participation of students with disabilities in the University. The Centre would bring together academicians, researchers, scholars, lawyers, practitioners, activists, students and other stakeholders to foster dialogue on the increasing relevance of disability studies and research.

THEMES:

Empirical and Applied Law & Economics of Governance and Inclusive Public Policy

The subject of 'law and economics' or 'economic analysis of law' is concerned with the intersection between the subjects of law & economics. It permits the greater use of economic tools & concepts to examine & understand the law in addition to recognizing the importance of law to the analysis of the economy. Today, the field of law & economics has expanded & transformed subjects such as property, contracts, torts, criminal law & procedure, constitutional law, administrative law, environmental law, family law, etc. The inherent advantage of this field is that its objective nature permits the legal system to function rationally & more efficiently. Besides, it provides a useful normative standard for evaluating law & policy. Law & economics is a cutting-edge, interdisciplinary field that applies tools from microeconomic theory to legal rules & structures so as to explain their functioning, evaluate their performance & prescribe alternative rules & structures so as to create optimum social outcomes. Law & economics has seen prolific development in various jurisdictions & has elicited startling results that have changed the way we look at & run our legal systems, winning scholars a number of accolades, notably including the Nobel Prize in economics.

Building on this foundation, the 9th International Conference on Law and Economics focuses on how empirical and applied economic analysis can enhance governance and promote inclusive policy design. It encourages evaluations of regulatory accountability, institutional performance, and the distributional impact of programmes such as social safety nets, digital governance, fiscal mechanisms, and environmental regulations. Centering governance and inclusion, the conference aims to advance evidence-based reforms that make laws more efficient, fair, and responsive to diverse communities.

Manuscripts may be in any of the substantive areas of law & economics, including but not limited to the following:
