ABOUT GCESCJ

The Centre for Environment, Sustainability and Climate Justice established by GNLU (GCESCJ), offers to study, research, and provide expert consultation in environmental matters. The Centre aims to provide a platform to all stakeholders, including grassroots people, government, industries, and administrative authorities. With student members passionate about the environment, it is a community of changemakers. The Centre is dedicated to safeguarding our planet's future and advancing the cause of sustainability and climate justice through legal means.

Moreover, the Centre has established an Eco Club as a part of its initiative to take on ground actions. It hosted the 21st IUCN Academy of Environmental Law Annual Colloquium at GNLU in 2023, the first time in the Indian subcontinent, in collaboration with UNEP, and established the International Conference on Climate Justice and Sustainable Environment (ICCJSE) as its annual flagship event, with its second edition in 2025. The Centre has also promoted student engagement through organising hackathons and certificate courses.

MESSAGE FROM THE DIRECTOR

"It gives me immense joy to welcome you to ICCJSE 2026. It is a space that has grown from a conference to a collective commitment to rethink how we imagine our shared environmental future. Each year when hosting the conference, I am reminded that climate justice is not an abstract ideal. It is a lived experience, shaped by people, communities, and the everyday choices we make. This conference was born from the belief that meaningful change begins when bright and curious young minds sit together with experts, question and explore solutions with courage. And each year, we try to act on that belief by creating that opportunity for such conversations to happen.

This year's themes reflect the world we stand in, it is complex, urgent, and full of possibilities. We hope to encourage environmental thinking and conversations that bridge policy, law, science, and life experiences. More importantly, we hope to inspire a sense of responsibility that goes beyond the conference halls.

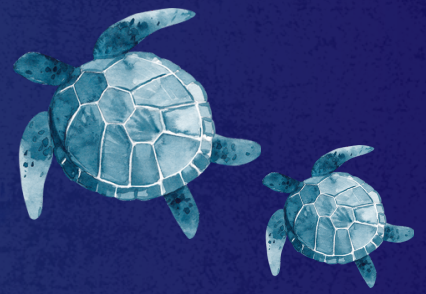

To every participant joining us, thank you for your commitment to climate justice. Your curiosity, your scholarship, and your conviction are what make ICCJSE meaningful. I hope this edition gives you not just knowledge, but a sense of purpose and hope for the country and the world we are all trying to build together."

ABOUT THE CONFERENCE

ICCJSE is the flagship initiative of GCESCJ, designed to act as a crucial forum for engaging with the most urgent environmental and climate challenges of our era. It is a multidisciplinary convergence of scholars, practitioners, policymakers, and international jurists who come together to exchange forward-looking ideas, share best practices, and explore innovative pathways in climate action, sustainability, and climate justice.

The Conference is not limited to formal paper presentations, it is also an opportunity to learn directly from experts shaping the field. Across three days, participants will engage in round-table discussions, thematic breakout rooms, and interactive dialogues aimed at fostering deep engagement with both academic scholarship and real-world experience. The intention is to cultivate a space where honest, meaningful conversations can take place, where you feel heard, where your perspective counts, and where you leave knowing that you are contributing to genuine, impactful change.
