Director's Message

It gives me great pleasure to address you through GNLU Times once again as we reflect on the monsoon semester of 2022. This was a particularly special semester for us as it marked a return to normalcy after the challenges posed by the COVID-19 pandemic. Seeing our campus bustling with activity again, with students and faculty engaging in in-person academic and extracurricular activities, was heartening.

I want to take this opportunity to congratulate Mr Justice M. R. Shah on his appointment as GNLU's Visitor, and Ms Justice Bela Trivedi, Mr S. V. Raju and Prof (Dr) Ranbir Singh on their nomination to GNLU's General Council. I am confident that their diverse backgrounds and wealth of experience will significantly benefit the university.

It is worth noting that GNLU is set to become the first NLU to establish a satellite campus outside its home state, with plans underway to set up a campus in Silvassa in the neighbouring Union Territory of Dadra and Nagar Haveli. This is a historic moment for GNLU, and we are excited about the opportunities and challenges ahead.

GNLU organised its eleventh convocation after a hiatus of three years. Our Visitor, Dr Justice D. Y. Chandrachud, presided over the ceremony. His insightful and inspiring convocation address particularly moved me, and I am confident that our graduating students felt equally inspired.

It was a great honour for GNLU to host the Vice-President of India, the Gujarat Governor, and the Gujarat Chief Minister for a programme on Excellence in Higher Education. We were also delighted to welcome the Union Law Minister to our campus for a fireside chat with our students.

I am pleased to report that GNLU entered into two new collaborations, one with the Bangabandhu Sheikh Mujibur Rahman Maritime University in Bangladesh and the other with the Indian Medical Association's Gujarat State Branch. These collaborations testify to our commitment to fostering international and interdisciplinary partnerships that benefit our students and faculty.

On the recruitment front, I am delighted to report that GNLU completed the Day Zero recruitment process for the 2018-23 batch with a record-breaking 113 offers, including 38 pre-placement offers, from top-tier law firms. This speaks volumes about the quality of our students and the rigorous training they receive at GNLU.

We also have some exciting new publications and research assignments to report. The Chief Minister of Gujarat released a new GNLU publication titled Ensuring Integrity: Lessons from Judiciary, which features landmark judgments on anti-corruption, public servant misconduct, and related aspects. The National Pharmaceutical Pricing Authority has commissioned GNLU to conduct a multijurisdictional study on drug pricing policies. The Government of India's Ministry of Women and Child Development has assigned GNLU to carry out an impact analysis and gap identification in the existing laws relating to women.

I am particularly proud of our alums and students, who continue to bring us laurels with their achievements in diverse fields. 15 GNLU alums qualified for joining the judiciary of Gujarat, Rajasthan, Haryana, and Bihar, while Radhapriya Goel represented India at the World Table Tennis Youth Contender event in Lebanon. Manvendra Singh Shekhawat participated in the NCC International Youth Exchange Programme in Dhaka, Bangladesh.

Finally, I wish to conclude by congratulating the GNLU Centre for Corporate and Insolvency Law on its tenth anniversary celebration and the Legal Services Committee for establishing a Pro Bono Club at GNLU.

With best wishes,

Prof (Dr) S. Shanthakumar

This issue of GNLU Times reflects the excitement and energy that permeated the Monsoon semester of 2022. It is a joy to present this issue to our readers, which is filled with articles, reports, and photographs of the various activities that took place on the campus.

After a long period of virtual activities, the return of on-campus events was eagerly awaited, and the semester did not disappoint. The 11th convocation was a highlight of the semester, where students and faculty came together to celebrate the achievements of the graduating class.

The campus was graced by some distinguished guests, including the Hon'ble Vice President of India, Hon'ble Union Law Minister, Gujarat Governor, and Gujarat Chief Minister. These visits were marked by insightful speeches and interactions, which enriched the university's academic environment. The cultural and sports activities organized by the students showcased their talent and creativity.

Overall, the Monsoon 2022 semester was a memorable one for GNLU, and the GNLU Times has captured the spirit of the semester in this issue. We hope that our readers will enjoy reading it as much as we enjoyed putting it together.

Dear Dr. Shanthakumar Ji

I am in receipt of your letter No. Dir/GB/283-75/2022 dated 22.12.2022 regarding the 5th issue of the GNLU Newsletter (Winter-2022).

I wholeheartedly appreciate your endeavour to impart education to the young minds & grooming them in specialized fields that would eventually contribute to positive development of the Indian society and to the entire Nation. It is delightful to note that GNLU is imparting valuable training to Indian Navy on the maritime law also.

I wish GNLU reaches to new horizons and soon excel as one of best law universities in the country as well as across the globe.

With regards

Yours Sincerely,

The Eleventh Convocation of GNLU

The Eleventh Convocation of GNLU was held on 06 August 2022. GNLU's Visitor and the Hon'ble Judge, Supreme Court of India, Dr Justice D. Y. Chandrachud, virtually presided over the convocation.

Mr Justice M. R. Shah, Hon. Judge, Supreme Court of India and a member of GNLU's General Council; Mr Justice Aravind Kumar, Hon'ble Chief Justice, High Court of Gujarat; Hon'ble Ms Justice Sonia Gokani, Hon'ble Judge, High Court of Gujarat and member of GNLU's General Council; Mr Justice N. V. Anjaria, Hon'ble Judge, High Court of Gujarat and a member of GNLU's Executive Council; and other legal luminaries graced the convocation ceremony.

A total of 247 students, who graduated in 2020, were conferred degrees at the convocation. They comprised 171 students of the five-year integrated LLB programme, 61 students of the LLM programme, 12 students of the MBA programme and three students of the doctoral programme.

27 Gold Medals were awarded to 16 students for their scholastic performance in various subjects. Of these, 15 Medals were bagged by eight female students. Simran Jain (BBA LLB Programme) received as many as four gold medals.

In his convocation address, Justice Chandrachud advised the graduating students to be guided by the path of their conscience and equitable reason. We carry the excerpts from his convocation address on the subsequent pages.

GNLU Director, Prof (Dr) Shanthakumar gave an account of the University's achievements over the last year and thanked all stakeholders for their support and cooperation.

Dr Shanthakumar congratulated the graduating students on completing GNLU's highly demanding programmes and wished them success and sustained happiness in whatever they choose to do in their career and life.

Excerpts from the Convocation Address by Justice Dr D. Y. Chandrachud

Unlike the stoic image of law that is generally represented as a mark of a good judge or lawyer, I do want to clarify that the characterization of emotions as a force that warps and degrades judgment is incorrect. As critical legal scholars have explored through their scholarship over the past two decades, understanding emotion is an essential part of building a fairer, more effective system. While emotions may lead us astray, they also play a crucial role in sense-making and decision-making. Even the assumptions of emotions leading individuals astray have more frequently been applied to individuals and groups with marginalized status, primarily individuals and groups lacking social, economic, educational or political capital.

Last weekend, at the All India District Legal Services Meet organised by NALSA, I emphasized upon the importance of incorporating fourth and final year law students in our legal aid programmes especially in mediation. One of the reasons I did so was because I felt that the students will do a much better job in mediating, which is a lot about managing emotions of parties, than lawyers who over the years become desensitized towards the trauma and emotions of parties involved. In our profession, it is very easy over the years to forget that each case you are dealing with defines the trajectory of life of the individuals involved in that case, even though it may just be one of the multiple cases you are dealing with for that day.

This is why I want to re-emphasize that all of these emotions you are feeling at your graduation are not only legitimate, but you should be proud for this amazing accomplishment. And I hope that as you sail through your career, you will continue to stay in touch and be guided by your emotional side as well.

I hope the past couple of years have been enriching for each one of you especially considering that the early years tend to be the most welcome in our profession. As you will realize in the long run, two years constitute a short time spent in the profession. When we are young, we tend to overstate the importance of the career choices we make and the long term impact they will have.

While I of course do not want to encourage you to make hasty decisions, I do want to reassure you that this is quite an early stage in your career and it is perfectly okay to be confused about the paths you have ahead and the choices that you want to make. Considering the various choices that the privilege of an education from a top tier National Law University, such as yours, opens, it would be scary if you were to have your entire life planned out at such an early stage.

Personally, I did not even have plans to pursue law after finishing my undergraduate degree from St. Stephens in Economics. Having battled the doubts of my admissions interview panel which was sceptical about my ability to pursue Economics in the first place I graduated at the first position in first class. I was all set to pursue a Masters in the field. However, I seem to have ended up taking a lesson from the movie '3 Idiots' on attending classes just for knowledge much before the movie came out and ended up sitting through some of the classes of Campus Law Centre in the break before my Economics Masters began. Riveted by the way law was taught, inter-twining questions of policy and constitutional morality with the quest for liberty and freedom, a feeling I hope many of you can relate to, I ended up making the career altering choice of pursuing Law. In my early days after I returned to the Bar after completing my doctoral studies at Harvard, I had moments of doubt. I had returned to India in preference to a high paying job at a Wall Street law firm. My first brief for mentioning a case for listing yielded a docket of 5 GMs. Though we marked our fees in GMs, there were no real gold mohurs which came to counsel. My fee of 5 GMs translated into seventy five rupees. A Harvard degree notwithstanding, that was how the market for legal services priced my worth.

The reason I am sharing this story is to let all of you know that life is much more a series of accidents than a linear planned event, and it is always okay to take your time to explore. All choices you make are worthwhile choices and there is no single way to use your law degree. As it is said, there is no curriculum to life, at every stage, it is an elective.

Despite whatever you choose and especially in litigation, I think an important skill, that you only learn over time is the importance of knowing when to speak and when it is in your benefit to stay quiet. I am reminded of my younger days as a lawyer in the Bombay High Court where I was representing a PSU which unfortunately that day had no case at all. So I stood there with my head bowed down as I knew that the second I would have had to open my mouth, I would have had to confess before the bench that I had no case. However, my learned friend representing the other side kept interrupting the bench, talking over them and needlessly arguing beyond a point to such an extent that the judge was so riled up that we ended up receiving an order in our favour. When the other side filed a letters patent appeal, such was my case that before anyone spoke the distinguished judge, Justice M L Pendse asked me “Mr. Chandrachud, what did you even argue for this order to have been passed in your favour?” Of course, I was too young then to respond cheekily, but you all know the answer now.

“As young wide-eyed graduates, you must aspire to attain utopia - for the harbingers of change are often hopeless dreamers.”

What Aaron Burr advises Hamilton in the famous musical, is probably a good idea in such contexts: “Talk less, Smile more, Don’t let them know what you’re against or what you’re for.”

But of course, in all other contexts and in more instances than less, it is also important to speak up and ignore this advice. After all, Hamilton would have probably never had the success he did, had he decided to be docile and silence the strong and insightful voice that led to his success, and I hope many of you will follow his path.

This brings me to my next advice, which is drawn from Professor Quigley’s “Letter to a Law Student Interested in Social Justice” which I think is applicable to all law students – remember to not confuse law and justice. A lot of work which leads to achieving justice within law also happens outside law in terms of social movements, shaping politics and cultural understanding. In our own context, we don’t have to look too far to decipher the difference in law and justice.

It was only in 2005 that women were granted interest in coparcenary property and were given equality in terms of succession of property. Till the longest time, there was no legislation regulating child labour. Minimum wages across the world are a result of recent labour movements.

During your own time at law school, Section 377 of the Indian Penal Code, which criminalized sexual relations even between consenting adults of the same gender was the law of the land. It was only in Navtej Singh Johar v Union of India, a Bench that I was a part of, that the Court held that Section 377 was unconstitutional as it violated the right to equality, non-discrimination and life and went on to provide an expansive affirmation of the rights of the LGBT individuals.

All these issues existed simultaneously with the institutions of law. However, we now agree that they were unjust. There continue to be laws as well as lack of regulations which push the marginalized deeper into the pockets of marginalization. At many points in your career you will realize that what is legal is probably unjust, whereas what is just may not be legal.

At all the junctures, where you do have the opportunity of working towards social justice and furthering rights in small and big ways, you must remember the importance of differentiating between law and justice and critiquing the law as a step to advance justice. Neeti in other words does not always result in Nyaya. Of course, you will encounter people who will tell you the situation is much better than before or better than the situation in other places. However, the journey to justice does not stop at a midpoint or where we feel that we are finally being less unjust than the others.

Along with this critique, it is important to simultaneously look for the ways in which laws can be reimagined and redefined to make them better and more just. The re-interpretation of law takes place as much through the lawyer’s vision as through the judge’s craft.

In this process as well as in anything you do in life, you will have moments of doubt and times when you confront failure. The more exciting, adventurous paths you choose in life, the more probable failure becomes. So always remember to not be afraid of failure. As a matter of fact, if you are not trying to achieve things where you are failing, you are probably not even trying to meet your potential because it is only at that edge where you will receive equal amounts of success and failure.

It also helps to remember, especially in the world of social media with limited attention spans, that a lot of work we do will only have long term impact. And that you should not worry too much about the everyday distractions that will come in your path.

This is especially relevant to remember in today’s world, with polarising opinions and conflicting actions. Legitimising and balancing thought can only be termed as a grave responsibility of each citizen - young and old. The words famously attributed to Voltaire - “I disapprove of what you say, but I will defend to death your right to say it” - must be incorporated into our being. Make no mistake - being accepting and tolerant of the opinions of others by no means translates into blind conformity and it does not mean not standing against hate speech.

Stepping into the world as fresh graduates, amidst the increasing noise and confusion of political, social and moral clashes of ideology, you must be guided by the paths of your conscience and equitable reason. Speak truth to power, maintain your composure in the face of unspeakable social injustices and utilise your good fortune and privileged positions to remedy them. It may seem idealistic, but as young wide-eyed graduates, you must aspire to attain utopia - for the harbingers of change are often hopeless dreamers.

“What is legal is probably unjust, whereas what is just may not be legal.”

As new lawyers, your education has entrusted in you the power to discern the right from the wrong, the power to identify that glimmering speck of justice hidden within voluminous court records, the power to influence positive and constructive thought through the rigours of academia or the power to bolster the economy, generate employment and create better working conditions in the corporate sphere. No matter what path in law you choose after graduation, this profession enables you to create a world that uplifts the collective along with the individual and assist the disenfranchised.

GNLU spreads wings beyond Gujarat

Another campus in Silvassa makes GNLU the first NLU with a campus outside its home state

Gujarat National Law University will soon set up a new campus at Silvassa in the neighbouring Union Territory of Dadra & Nagar Haveli and Daman and Diu.

GNLU Director, Prof (Dr) S. Shanthakumar, said, "The Union Territory Administration, under the leadership of Hon'ble Administrator Shri Praful Patel, was keen to have a quality law institute so that local students could access quality legal education. It requested GNLU to establish a GNLU campus at Silvassa and offered to provide the requisite land, building and financial resources for setting up and managing a campus at Silvassa. It also allotted the old secretariat complex to GNLU for a transitory campus to ensure that the Silvassa campus becomes operational without delay."

To begin with, GNLU will offer BALLB (66 seats) and LLM (33 seats) programmes from the Silvassa campus from 2023-2024. Similar to GNLU Gandhinagar's UG and PG programmes, admissions to these programmes will be based on Common Law Admission Test (CLAT). Twenty-five per cent of seats will be reserved for domiciles of the Union Territory of Dadra and Nagar Haveli and Daman and Diu.

GNLU Gandhinagar faculty organized a CLAT Guidance Camp from 10 to 13 November at Silvassa to spread awareness about careers in the field of law among the local students of the Union Territory and to provide guidance for CLAT 2023.

The Silvassa campus has become possible following the recent amendment in the Gujarat National Law University Act, 2003, enabling the university to set up another campus within or outside Gujarat.

None of the 23 National Law Universities has a second campus outside their home state. Thus, GNLU will be the first NLU to establish a campus outside its home state.

Faculty Development Programme on Curriculum Design, Pedagogy and Teaching Methodology for English Communication in Law Universities

GNLU organised one-week Faculty Development Programme on "Curriculum Design, Pedagogy and Teaching Methodology for English Communication in Law Universities" from 19 to 24 December 2022.

GNLU Director, Prof (Dr) S. Shanthakumar, inaugurated the programme. Others present at the inaugural session included Dr Urmi Satyan, Assistant Professor, School of Liberal Studies, PDEU; Dr Pratima Dube, FDP

Coordinator and Assistant Professor, GNLU; and GNLU Registrar, Dr Jagdeesh Chandra TG.

The FDP aimed to help the participants identify law students' academic and professional communication needs, chalk out a philosophical and conceptual framework for an appropriate curriculum suitable for law students, and explore innovative teaching-learning methods in the pedagogy of English for legal academic purposes.

Mr Justice M. R. Shah is the New GNLU Visitor

Hon'ble the Chief Justice of India has nominated Hon'ble Mr Justice M. R. Shah, Judge, Supreme Court of India, as the Visitor of Gujarat National Law University on 14 November 2022.

Hon'ble Mr Justice M. R. Shah has been associated with GNLU as a member of its General Council for a long time. He succeeds Hon'ble Dr Justice D. Y. Chandrachud, Chief Justice of India.

Hon'ble Mr Justice M.R. Shah was enrolled as an Advocate on 19 July 1982 and practised in the Gujarat High Court in Civil, Criminal, Constitutional, Taxation, Labour, Service and Company matters and specialized in Land, Constitutional, Education, Excise, Custom matters. He was appointed as an Additional Judge of the Gujarat High Court on 07 March 2004 and appointed as Permanent Judge on 22 June 2005. He was appointed as Chief Justice of Patna High Court on 12 August 2018. He was elevated as a Judge of the Supreme Court of India on 02 November 2018.

In recognition of his paramount contribution to the field of management education, the 23rd Lal Bahadur Shastri National Award for Excellence was conferred upon GNLU General Council member and Former IIM Ahmedabad Director, Dr Bakul Dholakia, at the hands of Shri Jagdeep Dhankhar, Hon'ble Vice President of India, on 08 October.

In his speech at the award ceremony, Vice President Shri Dhankhar said, "Honoured to be presenting the 23rd Lal Bahadur Shastri National award to an outstanding and eminently deserving Dr Bakul Dholakia, a Padma Shree awardee, a versatile personality with significant contribution as an exalted educationist and economist. His tenure as IIM Ahmedabad Director was highly impactful."

New Collaborations

Bangabandhu Sheikh Mujibur Rahman Maritime University

Gujarat National Law University (GNLU) and Bangabandhu Sheikh Mujibur Rahman Maritime University (BSMRMU), Bangladesh, signed an MoU on 31 July 2022. The MoU aims to develop closer interaction, facilitate student and faculty exchanges, and share ideas and best practices.

The MoU was signed on the sideline of the seminar on 'Integrated Delta Governance and Ocean Management in the Bay of Bengal: Way Ahead' held at the International Mother Language Institute, Dhaka.

GNLU Director Prof (Dr) S. Shanthakumar and BSMRMU Vice-Chancellor Rear Admiral M Khaled Iqbal, NBP, BSP, ndc, psc (retd), signed the MoU in the presence of Mr Dipu Moni, Honourable Minister of Education, People's Republic of Bangladesh; H.E. Mr Vikram K Doraiswami, High Commissioner of India to Bangladesh; and Mr Md. Abu Bakr Siddique, Secretary, Secondary and Higher Education Division, Bangladesh's Ministry of Education.

GNLU Director Prof (Dr) S. Shanthakumar said this MoU gives effect to the vision of the Prime ministers of India and Bangladesh to develop the maritime sector in both countries. It will pave a pathway for joint research on ocean management at the Bay of Bengal and address many other issues concerning India and Bangladesh. The epochal engagement of both universities will be significant for realising the shared vision of both prime ministers for a peaceful and prosperous maritime region.

Indian Medical Association Gujarat State Branch

GNLU and Indian Medical Association Gujarat State Branch (IMA GSB) signed an MoU to launch a one-year PG Diploma Course in Medical Law, Policy and Ethics for Medical Professionals on 12 November 2022.

The MoU was signed by GNLU Director Prof (Dr) S. Shanthakumar and IMA GSB Secretary Dr Mehul Shah.

Dr Mehul Shah said knowledge of law is becoming increasingly necessary for a medical practitioner to navigate the challenges of today's complex healthcare landscape. Consequently, we are happy to join GNLU, one of the finest law universities in the country, to launch a new diploma course in Medical Law, Policy and Ethics for medical professionals. The knowledge of medical laws will enable medical practitioners to develop critical thinking about legal, ethical and professional issues and take professionally, ethically and legally justifiable decisions.

GNLU Director, Prof (Dr) S. Shanthakumar, said the law is all-pervasive. It touches upon all aspects of human relationships. Therefore, every professional should know the law governing their profession. More so, a medical professional as the doctor-patient is a unique and delicate relationship. The new course will provide an opportunity to study the contemporary legal and ethical challenges healthcare professionals face. It will have comprehensive coverage and we propose to bring together a multidisciplinary team of experts comprising law teachers, legal practitioners, clinicians, biomedical scientists, ethicists, and policymakers, for this course. The first batch of the diploma course commenced in January 2023.

At the inaugural (From L to R): Dr Anjani Singh Tomar, Head, GNLU's Centre for Criminal Justice Sciences; Prof. (Dr.) Purvi Pokhariyal, Dean, School of Law, Forensic Justice and Policy Studies, National Forensic Sciences University; Prof. (Dr.) S. Shanthakumar, Director, GNLU; Hon'ble Justice Shri Aravind Kumar, Chief Justice, Gujarat High Court (Chief Guest and Key Note Speaker); Hon'ble Justice Shri N.V. Anjaria, High Court of Gujarat (Guest of Honour); Prof. (Dr.) Nirmal Kanti Chakrabarti, Vice-Chancellor, The West Bengal National University of Juridical Sciences, Kolkata (Guest of Honour); Prof. (Dr.) Thilagraj, President, Asian Criminological Society; and Dr Jagdeesh Chandra T.G., Registrar, GNLU

Gujarat National Law University and Asian Criminological Society jointly organised the 13th Asian Criminology Conference from 20 to 23 July 2022.

The Conference focused on two critical areas: where the existing laws are seen as being out-of-sync with contemporary technologies and where technology can play a significant role in the criminal justice process.

The Conference had two plenary sessions: Cyber Crime and Cyber Security-Challenges and Solutions and Enabling the Criminal Justice System for forgiving and Healing; and a roundtable on Cyber Physical Systems Centric Cyber Crimes: What Should We Do To Manage It? More than 300 papers were presented at the conference.

100+ participants from India, Macau, Sri Lanka, Australia, Bangladesh, Malaysia, Japan, Taiwan, Israel and China attended the conference. They had a background in law and clinical psychology, criminology and forensics.

In his keynote address, Hon'ble Justice Shri Aravind Kumar, Chief Justice, Gujarat High Court, said that technology is advancing at a fast pace. The driverless car may soon become a reality in our country and leave the law gasping for breath. The question is whether our police investigators, forensic science experts, courts and judicial officers are trained and ready to deal with the challenges of fast-advancing technology?

Asian Criminological Society's President, Prof (Dr) Thilagraj said various studies indicate that the crime rate in Asian countries is significantly less compared to developed Western nations. Yet, it has always been western criminology that has been taught and studied in India, and not Indian criminology. Therefore, there is a dire need to understand the crime problem from an Asian perspective.

GNLU Centre for Constitutional and Administrative Law

Constitution Day 2022

Mr A. Mariarputham, Senior Advocate, Supreme Court Of India, delivered a special lecture to celebrate Constitution Day 2022.

Mr Mariarputham focused on the constitutional provisions of reservation policy. He tracked the history of landmark judgements right from the 1951 Supreme Court judgement in the Champakam Dorairajan case leading to the First Amendment of the Constitution to the most recent Supreme Court judgement upholding the constitutional validity of the 103rd amendment providing 10 per cent reservation for the economically weaker section (EWS) of society for admission to educational institutions and employment in Central Government jobs.

In reply to a question, Mr Mariarputham said that Tamil Nadu is the only state having 69 per cent reservations despite the 1992 SC judgement that the total reservations under Article 16(4) should not exceed 50 per cent. The plea against the same is pending before the Supreme Court. The recent SC judgement upholding a 10 per cent reservation for EWS may change the contours of that case.

He also said that reservations are warranted because we do not address the underlying problem. There are disparities in society. Some people enjoy advantages over others by birth. If we devise a proper equalising method to address these disparities, perhaps reservations may not be necessary.

GNLU Centre for Women and Child Rights

Right to Education Conclave

GNLU Centre for Women and Child Rights (GCWCR), jointly with the National Commission for Protection of Child Rights (NCPCR) and Indus Action, organised a two-day Right to Education Conclave to bring academicians, students, and activists together to work towards the effective implementation of the Right to Education (RTE) Act.

GNLU Centre for Disability Studies

Consumerism and Disabilities

GNLU Centre for Disability Studies (GCDS) organised a webinar, 'Consumerism and Disabilities,' to celebrate the International Day of Persons with Disabilities on 03 December 2022.

National Law University Delhi's Prof Maheshwar Singh said, the Indian disabled population is not able to fully participate in society due to physical and attitudinal barriers. They are barely visible in higher education institutions, the labour or consumer markets. We have the law, but more than the law, we need an attitudinal change in society to bring persons with disability into the mainstream with sympathy and reasonable accommodation.

Certified Web Accessibility Professional, Mr Amar Jain, stressed the need to work with consumer redressal forums and disability redressal forums to enforce the legal rights of persons with disability. He said our rights are not our rights unless we make them our rights.

Advocate Ms Kanchan Pamnani focused on the problems faced by persons with disability in the service sector, particularly banking, insurance and capital markets. She said insurance companies often do not provide insurance policies for disabled people or charge a higher premium.

Founder & CEO of OMVAI: You Belong! Mr Vaibhav Kothari said we should build more accessible products and services; they would help not only persons with disability but society in general.

Earlier, GCDS Head, Dr A. Marisport, in his introductory remarks, explained the importance of discussing the consumer rights of persons with disabilities.

Draft National Policy for Persons with Disabilities, 2021
